Timber Fever Grips Hinterlands of

By PETE LOUDON A new timber rush is under-way in British Columbia.

Forest survey crews with untold millions in their grubstakes and a vision of hinterlands have been staking out the wilderness. A map of their claims makes the prova giant jigsaw

Only the inaccessible far north and the already apportioned south coast are free of the boom talk and the bustle of lumbermen tuning up chain saws and pegging out sites for pulp mills.

In some places forests claimants overlap one another in their eagerness and the elbowing and shoving threatens up-roars when hearings on the claims open this spring.

Poised with a sword like Solomon is Minister of Lands, Forests and Water Resources Ray Williston, His decisions soon will spell out the names of towns and villages that will "strike it rich" . . . and those

B.C. is such that some rural members of the legislature are potential ulcer cases.

It's a story which ultimately will affect every B.C. resident, But when the hearings beginthe first is April 20 at Prince Rupert-most of us will be lost in the technical jargon of foresters and engineers. This series of articles en-deavors to anticipate the complications and spell out the reasons for all the fuss. Put in perspective, the forest boom is the climax of a 17-year effort by the forest service fired by the concern of a generation of worried backbenchers and cabinet ministers.

Given direction by two royal commissions headed by the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan they had launched a crusade to stop the rape of B.C. forests and place all production on a sus-stained yield basis—a basis where we would never cut more trees than we are growing and where future generations would never lack for a flow of forest products and a vigorous indus-

Thus some of the finest stands of timber on the coast passed into private hands. Other temporary tenures were granted to private operators as the years rolled by. There was small but leases and timber sales.

In the early part of this century the government found itself in a bad way. Rich timber resources had been released to private industry at prevailing prices, for 21-year terms. Revenues to the crown were pitiful; the province was broke and its natural wealth was being drained away by private investors.

Gradually, as timber leases expired, the province began slowly to bring its trees back under its own control. But al-

New Ministers?

Having missed by a country mile with a March 13 diction, this bystander ain't guessing.

There's considerable speculation, also, as to whether Mr. Bennett will expand his cabinet by one or perhaps two new ministers. Ralph Loffmark of Vancouver-Point Grey is-or perhaps I should say, was—considered a likely candidate for port-folio and $15,000 a year

In any case, if appointments are to be made, the word will probably follow close after the session wind-

Pulp and Power

From the orderly pattern of Tuesday's debate, two words emerge.

Power is one, and the other is pulp; and in com-bination, they may work sig-nificant changes in the prevailing saw-log economy of British Columbia forest industries.

Williston's answers may not always satisfy, but he has a refreshing habit of meeting opposition questions squarely. He also succeeds better than most in giving the total picture.

That, in a department concerned with an industry which has undergone enormous changes both in operating techniques and philosophy, is no easy task,

The program involves painting and improving business premises throughout the business district in conformity with an over-all color scheme which will ensure variety, harmony and the maximum visual effect. Along with the paint-up, it is often necessary to improve signs, dress up cluttered sidewalks and storefronts, and generally rehabilitate the street scene. The work is carried out according to a master plan which makes it possible for each business location to get the most for its money and achieve the best possible results.

Similar plans have been carried out in scores of cities on this continent and in Europe and the results in every case have astonished even he supporters of the program. This almost guarantees the sucdess of the Victoria scheme once it gets under way.

The basic architecture is there in many cases, the old-time artistry of brickwork, arches, cornices requiring only accentuation to bring out their charms. There are several streets which would lend themselves readily to attractive pedestrian malls. There are a multitude of ways in which our superb gardening climate could be further used to beautify the city streets.

There is a growing realization among Greater Victorians that their urban environment is something which they can do something about, as some enterprising merchants already have shown; that it isn't necessary to live in drab or unattractive surroundings; that an inferior environment must inevitably exert its effect on those, who dwell in it; that it is not too late all the privileges of to do something about Victoria—in membership but apfact that the time is ripe for immediate improvement.

For, as Mr. Diefenbaker pointed out, "we have done more than any other nation to assist United Nations in peace-keeping ations." Any proper appraisal of it must, of course, also take into account the fact that we have on NATO duty in Europe about 6,500 men in the independent brigade group and another 6,000 in the air division. There is also a reinforceair division. There is also a reinforce-ment commitment; two-thirds of a division earmarked as the supreme commander's strategic reserve in Canada

The United Nations effort, as described by General Walsh, was as follows. There were in Sinai more than 800 servicemen divided among a reconnaissance squadron, a signal troop and a special group providing administrative support for the whole of the UN Middle Eastern force.

Canadians on Duty

In The Congo there was a Canadian signals unit with over 300 all ranks and a staff contribution in the United Nations Congo headquarters.

The Yemen, primarily an air force operation, was then just getting under way. There were 42 officers and 32 men serving with international though not missions on Viet Nam and Laos; other small groups of specialists in Palestine and Kashmir. A mixed army d air force team was training the Ghanaian armed forces.

Manpower then involved in these army tasks was 1,270. Some of the tasks were, of course, of very long duration. For example, the force has now been in Sinai for eight years.

These far flung operations naturally involve supply problems. Air transport command operations last year extended to The Congo, Indo-China, the Gaza marked for UN service. While it was kept in readiness, there was no demand for it until this month when the call came which has now resulted in the despatch to Cyprus of 1,150 troops and some 100 RCAF personnel.

This record is plainly a matter of pride for all parties in the House and there was not the slightest inclination the ranks of isolationist Creditistes) to shirk the heavy new sponsibility now thrust upon Canada.

Mr. Douglas, indeed, was expressing the general feeling when he expressed pleasure that the government had not in the emergency "stopped to haggle about the question of money."

But this certainly does not mean that Parliament accepts without protest a situation in which a country supplying the troops is required at the same time meet their full costs, especially when three of the permanent members of the Security Council, even before the Cyprus crisis, were behind nearly $80 millions in their commitments for other peace-

No Illusions

It should also be said, to the credit of this Parliament, that it acted as it did on Friday night without any illu-sions. The prime minister gave the House the bleak facts; he promised no easy passage and held out no hope that the Cyprus situation could be tidied up and peace restored in a magic three months. It was a worried Parliament; worried above all, perhaps, about the problem of where reinforcements would come from if a civil conflict widened to embrace Greece and Turkey.

It is my contention this disregard for the safety of others is due in part to the insurance-minded world we live in. Granted, insurance is needed to protect the owner of a vehicle and also to compensate any person who may be infured as the result of an accident. Yet, I've often wondered what the outcome would be if all automobile insurance was cancelled for a holiday weekend.

Would the death rate drop, owing to the fact motorists would then be held responsible for any financial debts incurred? Too often a motorist is heard to say when asked by a companion to slow down, "Don't worry I have insur-ance." Until such attitudes as this are overcome by the public, insurance, in-stead of being the blessing it is, will without us realizing it become a curse.

Plea for Parks

I have written the following letter to Mr. John Tisdalle, MLA.:

I am writing in the hope that it may stir yourself, and our government, to some realistic action towards our provincial parks program.

Until now, the Social Credit government and particularly Mr. Kiernan, have only shown that they possess either a gross ignorance, or a callous indifference to the needs and wants of the people of B.C. regarding our wilderness parks.

What B.C. needs right now, is strong

We Follow the Sun for FRESHNESS

EVER WONDER: "Where the tomatoes grow when winter winds blow?" That's one of the miracles of modern living-the joy of fresh fruits and vegetables all year long.

IT'S NOT AN EASY TASK-following the sun to bring you the best crops at reasonable, tempting prices. Our produce people must keep an eagle eye on market reports. As native fruits and vegetables run out, buyers reach farther and farther to locate crops just ripening under the sun.

THEY MUST BUY WISELY-then insure delivery at the very peak of freshness. Have they done their jobs well? Your pleasure in shopping our fine produce tells us that they have.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. In his first time at bat as a Yankee in a World Series, rookie Elston Howard hit a home run. The odds against this feat were not nearly as formidable, however, as those against the proposition that Howard would ever be a Yankee in the first place. He had a handicap. He was a Negro.

At least the civil rights pickets outside Yankee Stadium were convinced in 1954 that the Yankees had no intention of dismantling their color barrier. The Yankees and Red Sox alone, of all the American League teams, had no Negroes on their roster. This was eight years after Jackie Robinson had first demonstrated that a Negro player could wear a big-league uniform with class.

The protest marchers who ringed Yankee Stadium with their placards were more than ever convinced of a Yankee color line after the Vic Power case. The Yankees brought Power as high as their Triple A club in Kansas City and even to a Yankee training common in 1954. even to a Yankee training camp in 1954.

Power had a big year in Kansas City. He could play the outfield or first base. In the Yankee training camp, he was the superb ball player. But he never wore the Yankee pinstripes as a regular. Suddenly they traded him to Cleveland, where he became the best first baseman in the league. Now intensified were the suspicions the Yankees didn't want a Negro ball player, and the marchers

That Glove Looked Like Brushoff

No group of protesters ever was so wrong. Yankee officialdom could not say publicly all that was on their mind. They were simply waiting for the Negro ball player in the Yankee mold and power. Their scouts were already taiking about a big catcher named Howard at Muske-

Howard made it to the Yankees' training camp at St. Petersburg and the Negro press raised a big fuss when manager Casey Stengel handed him an outfielder's glove. It was the brushoff, they claimed. The Yankees wouldn't permit Howard to catch, his natural position, and were trying to ease him out. The furore increased when, despite evidence Howard could hit big-league pitching, the Yankees released him to their Toronto farm club.

Here, now, in the Yankees' training camp where he is $67,000 a year Yankee and perhaps their most indispensible ball player, Howard recalled those embarrassing days. "I know the Yankees were levelling with me in 1954. I didn't going to Toronto. All I wanted was to be saved from well-meaning friends who were doing me no favors," Howard said.

Outfield Shortest Route to Yanks

'I didn't want to be a symbol of anything. I just wanted to play big-league ball." Howard said. "When Sten-gel handed me that outfielder's glove, I knew it wasn't any brushoff. He explained everything as nicely as a man could. He said he wanted to make me a Yankee as quick as possible and that the outfield was the shortest cut, "It didn't need much explanation. I was a catcher and Yogi Berra was a catcher. I wasn't going to break into the job of the man who had just been voted the most valuable player in the league. I went up to Toronto and hit 230 and I knew I was going to be a Yankee in 1955."

The pickets disappeared from Yankee Stadium that year. Howard was, indeed, a Yankee, playing the outfield and taking a turn at catching, too, and hitting an estimable 200 in 97 games of that pernant-winning year. He wasn't quite a regular, but Stengel had him stashed away for the when Berra would be fading out. That happened in 1959, when Howard caught 125 games.

Pitchers Preferred Elston to Yogi

For all his skills and ardor, Berra was the synthetic catcher, the converted outfielder who never did learn all the tricks. A Yankee spokesman who says, "Don't use my name," tells it this way: "Let's face it. Our pitchers prefer to pitch to Howard and told Stengel so. He had a better arm and he covered those pitches better out of the strike

The league's most valuable player award was voted Howard last year. Before that, in 1961 there had been league batting championship for him with his-.348. He upped his home run output to 28 last year, just missing ing the record of 30 by a catcher, held by Berra and Gus

"They can have the home run records," Howard said. "I found out that going for homer records can drive you nuts. I had those 28 homers by August and began admiring myself as a man who had hit more than any other I didn't get a single homer in the last two months. Got two big 400-foot triples in one game, but no 350-foot homers when I was trying for them. Most of the homers you get are accidental."

45 DIFFERENT MODELS OF CARS

Why one stop at your Chevrolet dealer's is like having your own private auto show

And if we had room here we could go on and on and list all the engines Chevrolet offers, starting at the Chevy II's 90-horsepower 153 4-cylinder (it's the thriftiest!) and ranging all the way up to the big Chevrolet's extracost 425-horsepower 409 V8 (it's the greatest!).

We could wax eloquent about the choice of transmissions, and how they team up with those Chevy power plants to produce some of the going-est cars ever. Or the fact that you can have umpteen different exterior and interior color choices — enough, in fact, to allow some of our lady customers to have the sort of fun in buying and choosing that they generally reserve for shoe stores. And all the models with bucket seats and all the models without — all of them comfortable as all get-out. And the hundreds—yes hundreds—of different extra-cost options... serious ones like Positraction and gay ones like the new AM-FM radio.

But all that's best left to your Chevrolet dealer. The long and short of it is, he'll go to any length to show you exactly the kind and size and price of car you want — and exactly how reasonable that price can be!

RUNNING LIGHTS URGED FOR ALL CARS ALWAYS

Running lights may become standard equipment on toria cars if an idea of the B.C. Automobile Association (Victoria) goes into operation. First vice-president G. Conway Parrott said Tuesday pight the association is considering whether to promote the lights for all vehicles during daytime.

Mr. Parrott has one on his own car:

Running lights are 21-candlepower, attached to the car grille and turned on and off with ignition.

They warn of a car's approach at all times. They are mandatory in some parts of North America.

A special message from Campbell to Chicken Noodle fans:

You can give your family the delicious nourishment of chicken soup in four other good ways. Here's how.

Probably you and your family have been enjoying Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup for years.

But while you've been wrapped ' up in noodles, Campbell has been doing some other delicious things with chicken,

For instance, Campbell's Chicken with Rice, The broth (like all our chicken broths) is simmered from the whole chicken.

Then Campbell adds plump pieces of chicken: juicy white meat, tasty dark mear

The rice is the long grain kind more expensive, but fluffier.

Spices? A variety - to give you just-right seasoning. Campbell's Chicken Gumbo is chicken soup with a zesty southern Tender chicken, rice, tomatoes and fresh vegetables all go into Chicken Gumbo. But it's okra, a flavourful, sunny south vegetable, that gives this soup its delightful spiciness. Campbell's Chicken Vegetable Soup contains fresh, wholesome vegetables - the kind you get in our Vegetable Soup. With the extra nourishment of chicken. Chicken Vegetable is a substantial soup. So nice to come home to on March days that come in like a lion.

Then there's Campbell's Cream of Chicken. It's made with farm-fresh and savoury spices. A luxurious soup.

It's a versatile sauce as well; does marvellous things for vegetables, gravies, and the common casserole.

We don't suggest that Chicken Noodle fans give up their favourite chicken soup entirely.

On the other hand, it might be pleasant to serve one of Campbell's other delicious chicken soups -- just for a change.

For the first time in seven years the Ed Sullivan Show was in first place in the latest A. C. Nielsen report for the two-week period ending Feb. This was attributed to the appearance of The Beatles on the Sullivan show at the time the audience survey debut in the fall of 1962.

The shows that finished in the fourth through the fifteenth positions were listed in this order. Dick Van Dyke, My Favorite Martian, Petticoat Junction, Andy Griffith, Bing Crosby (a special show). The Lucy Show Candid Camera, Danny Thomas, Lassie, I've Got a Sceret, Red Skelion, Gunsmoke and Jackie Gleason. The latter two-shows were tied for fifteenth place.

The CBC has announced in Toronto that it has shelved an experiment aimed at discovering new television drama writers.

The discovery project, begun last November, con missioned 12 first drafts of plays from 65 writers who gram changes have made the plays unusable. Mr. Ab-lan did say, however, that the experiment might one day

TID BITS: The heavy work schedule of Petticoat Junction has forced Bea Benaderet to drop her vocal role as "Betty Rubble" in the Flintstones. The new voice belongs to Gerry Johnson.

A one-hour NBC-TV special surveys the sad state of professional boxing April 28. The narrator of the program, Boxing's Last Round, will be David Brinkley, who, in the past, had a memorable broadcast with Emile Griffith, the other fighter in the ring when Benny (Kid) Paret was fatally injured on national television. The special will raise the question of whether boxing

A spokesman for NBC-TV's "Profiles in Courage" series, which is based on President Kennedy's book and will make its debut this fall, says the late chief executive insisted it should not be aired until after the November . Ken Murray will show films of the late wood Palace next Saturday.

Timber Fever Grips Hinterlands of B.C.

This series of articles endeavors to anticipate the complications and spell out the reasons for all the fuss.

Put in perspective, the forest boom is the climax of a 17-year effort by the forest service fired by the concern of a generation cabinet ministers.

Given direction by two royal commissions headed by the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan they had faunched a crusade to stop the rape of B.C. forests and place all production on a sus-stained yield basis—a basis where we would never cut more trees than we are growing and where future generations would never lack for a flow of forest products and a vigorous indus-

The winds blew fair Tuesday, and after rounding Cape Horn in the shape of Lands and Forests Minister Williston's salary vote at 11:42 p.m., lawmakers scudded on to approve estimates totalling $18,558,896 in a flat 18 minutes.

Today, members expect to make their northing into the uncertain latitudes of Social Welfare, where we may expect anything from squalls to a full gale. My own hope is that with the help of oil already poured by Minister Wesley Black, our somewhat battered ship of state may find comparatively smooth sailing.

As to the big off-floor question of the day—when will the session end?—members' guesses now range from an optimistic "This Friday" to a dolorous "Three days before Christmas!"

New Ministers?

Having missed by a country mile with a March 13 prediction this bystander ain't guessing.

There's considerable spec ation, also, as to whether Mr. Bennett will expand his cabinet by one or perhaps two new ministers. Ralph Loffmark of Vancouver-Point Grey is-or perhaps I should say, was considered a likely candidate for port-folio and $15,000 a year

In any case, if appoint, ments are to be made, the word will probably follow close after the session wind-

Pulp and Power

From the orderly pattern of Tuesday's debate, two words emerge.

Power is one, and the other is pulp; and in com-bination, they may work significant changes in the pre ailing saw-log economy of British Columbia forest industries.

Mr. Williston's answers may not always satisfy, but he has a refreshing habit of meeting opposition questions squarely. He also succeeds better than most in giving the total picture.

Let God Do It

While Mr. Williston fails to agree with North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson's oldlogger contention that "God can plant our trees and they will grow very well," the minister did reveal that his department may change its replanting system. Under the new plan, industry rather than government would bear the cost of refor-
